

PRESS RELEASE

'What if your past crushes into your present?'

Nevada's ghost town Rhyolite shines in novel by Dutch writer

BEATTY - The Dutch journalist and writer Marcel Beijer will present his book Golden Mountains in the Beatty Museum on May 4th. The book is largely set in Rhyolite in 1907 during the gold rush. Rhyolite is a ghost town now.

About Golden Mountains

Golden Mountains takes partly place in 1990 in The Netherlands and partly in 1907 in Rhyolite. The main character is Caroline who lives in Almere, a fast-growing city in The Netherlands. She earns very little and craves to have more money. One day she finds herself back in the booming city of Rhyolite in 1907 during the gold rush. Caroline is a woman of standing there and befriends a young prostitute. This friendship changes both their lives. Until a high-profile murder is committed...

Golden Mountains appeared in The Netherlands in 2020 by ISJB publishers and was highly praised by the press and readers.

Rhyolite, Nevada

Beijer visited the ghost town of Rhyolite several times and became fascinated by the rise and fall of the town that once housed more than 8,000 people. In the book he brings back to life the lost city and its inhabitants.

Golden Mountains by Marcel Beijer is available as paperback ($ 12,99) and as e-book ($ 7,99)

A trailer can be seen on www.marcelbeijer.com

ISBN-10 : 1737750589

ISBN-13 : 978-1737750581

More information: www.marcelbeijer.com

About Marcel Beijer

Marcel Beijer is a Dutch journalist and writer. Golden Mountains is his second novel. He is now working on his third book, which is expected to be published in 2023.

Note (not for publication)

Marcel Beijer will be in Nevada for promotion of his book on May 3rd and May 4th. He is more than willing to give interviews to the (local) press. Marcel speaks English quite well, but please do keep in mind that it's not his native language. Although the book is already available on Amazon, the official release is on May 4th at 6 pm at the Beatty Museum in Beatty NV, in the presence of the writer.

To make interview reservations, please fill in the form on www.marcelbeijer.com

On the site there are press photo's available. Credit: Maarten Feenstra